SMALL WAVES MAKE GOOD SURF-RIDING IMPOSSIBLE

Outrigger Club Exhibition Not Artistic Success, But Visitors Enjoy the Waikiki Outing.

Have it all on the count, if you please, and friends from the shore, really it is not our fault that the surf was all to the calm and only yesterday afternoon. It is only one of a thousand things without exception—that the surf is so small. All this to preclude the statement that the Outrigger Club exhibition should take place in the surf off Waikiki yesterday afternoon. Was a fact of the very worst kind. The fault was the fault of the surf, not of the people of Honolulu, and it is a matter of the very keenest regret to every Hawaiian in town that there was no opportunity to show off the wonderful skill of our Hawaiian youths and give to visitors some idea of the delights of sailing.

The surfers were there in their bathing suits, the boards were all taken out and ready for use, the canoes were piled where they could be quickly around either of the three canoes, and so it was decided that the exhibition will be postponed for later on. This will probably be when the return exhibition arrives here.

But there was plenty for the visitors looking on from watching the surf riders. On the Outrigger Club grounds, the Kamehameha Aquatic Club were camped, and with their typically Hawaiian atmosphere, lent a very attractive touch of local color to the scene.

Also there were palm trees. The still was crowded round to watch the big Hawaiians paddling the gleaming canoes of fast, and they all took a taste of it, but none of them seemed very enthusiastic about it as a steady diet.

Impromptu Poi Fight.

The real fun of the afternoon was provided by two of the younger members of the Outrigger Club, who started an impromptu poi fight. The manner of it had but the same of action, but the crowd remained attracted by the sounds of a tinny whistle being placed in the grass hut where the poi was being made.

launched, and a bunch of small boats sailed round from the harbor to join in the sport. But there was no surf, and the immense crowds of spectators along the beach waited and waited, but there was nothing doing.

Fortunately there was some surf, riding of the very smallest kind, it is true, but the situation was saved to a great extent by three charming girls, the Misses Ruth Sayer, Josephine Pratt, and Carol Low, experts on a surfboard, took their boards and paddled gracefully out to where what but the surf there was broke, and ranged the short two hundred yards over the reef.

Applause for the Girls.

Wind was sent round that the girls were going out, and the visitors took to the end of the Moana pier to get a view of the three sun-burned, tanned, and smiling girls, who paddled so swiftly and easily out to the reef. The afternoon was clear and the sun was shining, so that every body could get a good view, and, when a people wave came along and the three of them jumped up and stood on their boards, there were cries of admiration from the multitude watching.

There were many surfers out, and they gave a fair exhibition of wind surfing, but when there are real waves, this, while a lame excuse for surfing as it really is, was unique enough to interest the visitors, and all the afternoon was to be sympathetic with these wave riders was for their delight.

Visitors Try Canoeing.

Many of the visitors accepted the invitation of the clear water and went in for a swim while the canoes were being taken out for a race. In the exhibition of riding it on the waves. Everybody who tried it, especially the ladies, expressed enjoyment of the experience.

Owing to the conditions the judges decided that it would be impossible to

DETAILS OF THE MAILE VICTORY

The details of the play in which the Maile soccer team defeated the Puma-hans last Saturday, thus tying them for the championship of the series, are as follows:

Story of the Game.

Pumahan elected to play with the wind and the Mailes kicked off. Immediately the Puma-hans took the ball and, with a good passing rush, threatened the Maile goal. Maileh took the ball half way between wing and center and was about to shoot for goal when he was whistled offside.

For some time after this the ball kept fairly well amidst the Mailes. Then the Mailes took a chance and threatened. Maileh evaded Gray very cleverly and shot for goal, but he missed by a few feet. From the goal kick the Puma-hans took possession and it looked like a score, but Maileh was there with the leg and cleared in his usual fashion.

Gray cleared a forward Maile rush and sent it to his forwards. Maileh took the ball and centered beautifully to Walter who shot straight but was blocked by Fraser to goal. A corner resulted and the Puma-hans might have scored if Billy Anderson's head had not come in the way of the ball and sent it clear.

Then the Puma-hans seemed to be having a bit of their own way for a full ten minutes. But the Mailes took charge of things after this and kicked down on the Puma-hans. Maileh took the ball away from Puma-hans and passed it to Harry Bailey, who rushed the leather to the front of goal and then sent it. Dwight who headed the ball into Puma-hans' hands. The ball stopped for a moment then rolled through the outstretched fingers and rolled fairly into the goal. One to nothing for the Mailes.

Fred Bailey Appears.

Up to this time the Mailes had been playing without Fred Bailey, who came on the field just after the goal was scored. In spite of this addition to the Mailes, the Puma-hans began to make some headway and soon were firing at goal.

But the Maile forwards were showing better than all the time and a magnificent piece of forward passing was played by an offside. It was the Maile's much more skill. Maileh took possession and whistled to Maileh. Fred sent him to Maileh and the latter made a splendid center. Harry Bailey ran up and headed the ball down through the goal, but he was offside and so the score did not count.

The Puma-hans did most of the troubling for the rest of the first half. From a free kick on half way, they kicked the ball up to the Maile goal and made six successive shots, all of which were blocked.

The Second Half.

The Puma-hans came out on the field for the second half with determination was on large on their faces. They started out with a rush and began to make things look worse for the Mailes and soon the ball was in Puma-hans' hands.

After some passing the ball fell into the hands of the Puma-hans and they began to make things look worse for the Mailes and soon the ball was in Puma-hans' hands.

Puma-hans could not keep the Mailes out with a whoop.

From out of a scrimmage in center, the Puma-hans goal, followed closely by Fred Bailey. He dodged the opposition, which was straggly and, with a hard kick, sent the ball clean into Maileh's hands, whence it slipped through his legs and goal.

After that it was a walkover. There were but a few minutes left to play and the Mailes threatened every side and of the time. The Puma-hans were discouraged and hardly even got the ball in the Maile half of the field. Two minutes before time the Mailes made a specially hard rush and Harry Bailey booted through.

Ten gallons of fish chowder arrived at the Outrigger grounds just as the boys came from the attempts at surfing stunts in the surf that wasn't a surf, yesterday afternoon. The chowder was the offering of the "club's best friend" who unfortunately could not be present. It was eagerly devoured under the shade of the hana trees, and one or two belated Clark cruisers who happened to be present pronounced the chowder superior to anything of the kind on the mainland, and suggestive of the aquarium.
